

Margaret Tsirantonakis

Margaret Tsirantonakis was born in Crete, Greece, raised in Queens, New York and lives and works in Stamford, CT. She attended Parsons School of Design in NYC with a BFA in Painting.

An important influence on Tsirantonakis' paintings and works on paper are her frequent visits to her place of birth, Chania, Crete. While the Mediterranean light permeates her painterly sensibility, she continues to explore abstract relationships between objects, shapes, landscape, color and mark-making.

She has had solo exhibitions at Prince Street Gallery, NYC, in 2016 and 2013, with an upcoming one in 2019. Tsirantonakis' work has been exhibited in New York City, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Taos, NM, and Greece. Her work is in private and corporate collections in the United States, Europe and Japan.
