

Georgia Vourou

Georgia Vourou is a dedicated social work professional currently completing her Bachelor of Social Work at Stony Brook University, with graduating in May 2026. She will continue her academic journey in the fall, pursuing a Master of Social Work with a focus on Policy and Social Advocacy.

Passionate about creating lasting social change, Georgia strives to unite communities and empower them to realize and enact the positive transformations they envision. Her career is dedicated to working with vulnerable populations, helping them recognize their inherent strengths and find their voices.

Georgia's own upbringing has greatly shaped her commitment to this work. Having moved to New York at the age of fourteen, she deeply cherishes her Greek heritage and the values it instilled in her. Raised by a resilient disabled widow who cared for three young daughters, Georgia learned the importance of faith, resilience, and community. Growing up in a tightly-knit village, she experienced the power of compassion and mutual support—values she now seeks to infuse into every aspect of her career in social work.
